Secret government every American with Number 666!

Copyright ©1996 Weekly World News

WASHINGTON — A conservative research group has blown the lid off a secret government plot to tattoo every man, woman and child in America with the evil number 666 — the Bible's Mark of the Beast — before the year 2000!

And if the so-called National Identification Initiative actually comes to pass, it will be the fulfillment of Bible prophecy and prove beyond doubt that the "final battle between good and evil," Armageddon, is going to happen in our lifetimes.

"The dividing lines between God and Satan are being drawn and as much as I would like to say otherwise, the government of the United States is on the side of Satan," Dr. Donna Lornts, author of the important new book, Pipeline To Eternity, told reporters.

"The National Identification Initiative might seem innocent enough on the face of it, but it doesn't take an Einstein to figure out what it really means, both for Satan and all of mankind.

AUTHOR Dr. Donna Lornts.

"By tattooing Americans with the Devil's number, the government is distinguishing U.S. citizens from the other peoples of Earth, setting us apart in preparation for the terrible times to come.

"Once you have set yourself apart, of course, it is a simple matter to withhold food and other essential goods and services like housing and medical care from people who aren't wearing the number.

"If you know your Bible, of course, you'll recall that St. John warned, in the Book of Revelation, that as the End Times came upon us, nobody would be allowed to buy or sell anything, not even food for our children, unless they were wearing the Mark of the Beast, the evil number 666, on their forehead or wrist.

"From antiquity on, Christians have tried to understand if this was a literal prophecy or symbolic of something else. As we can see from the National Identification Initiative, it is literal.

"And woe to those who allow themselves to wear it. For the Bible says their names will not be written in the Book of Life. They will burn in Hell."

Nobody in Washington is talking about the frightening identification initiative because, as one observer put it, "this kind of thing terrifies Americans, and if they find out too much too soon, there will be rioting in the streets."

In fact, when the federal government issued Social Security numbers back in the 1930s, it almost caused a revolt.

That, as Dr. Lornts points out, is why Social Security cards contain a disclaimer that specifically states: "Not to be used for identification."

Just who is spearheading the initiative remains unclear.

According to Dr. Lornts, it is the brainchild of "a powerful group of national politicians and businessmen who basically run America behind the scenes."

They are working behind "a near impenetrable shroud of secrecy," she explained.

"Needless to say, these men have enormous power and influence," continued Dr. Lornts. "What they want, they get. And what they want is a

WHEN TO TRUST YOUR GUT

Your gut fears can tip you off to danger or lead you to success, says an expert — if you know when to trust them.

That's because gut feelings are really "knowledge that comes to us without any conscious remembering or reasoning," said Dr. Ralph Long, an expert in the field of natural instinct.

"Our own thought processes, examines it subconsciously and delivers an answer to the unspoken question. We call the end result a gut feeling."

Here are tips from Dr. Long about when to listen to those hunches.

How you like to gamble reveals your personality!

Your favorite form of gambling reveals a lot about your personality, say psychologists.

For example, if you like bingo, "you're a very sociable, orderly and predicable person," according to Dr. Stephen Thayer.

Bingo players are also religious and fun-loving, added Dr. Elayne Kahn, author of the book 1001 Ways You Reveal Your Personality.

Here's what these experts say you're really like if you enjoy the following types of gambling:

NUMBERS PLAYERS — You are positive, optimistic and hopeful. You have a playful quality which amuses your friends.

LOTTERIES — You are civic-minded and like to help out worthy causes."You feel that as long as you're going to take a chance in life, some of the money should go to help others," explained Dr. Thayer.

HORSE RACING — You enjoy the excitement of crowds, and you're enthusiastic and competitive. You like to do new things and meet new people. You trust your own instincts and often act on your hunches.

SLOT MACHINES — You are a determined person. "You know what you want in life and have the ability to stick to it and not let setbacks deter you from your goal," said Dr. Thayer.

CARD GAMES — If you like poker, blackjack, etc., you are basically honest but you can hide your feelings when you need to. You're very tactful and extremely intuitive, added Dr. Kahn. "Often you know what other people are thinking."

Justice is the only thing that allowed the human race to stop living as animals and to start living as human beings.

HAIR-RAISING ESCAPE!

Lady con uses rope braided from her own locks to climb out of prison!

19 FEET LONG!

MADRID — In the most amazing jailbreak in Spanish history, cunning Maria Chavez escaped from a prison tower by lowering herself down on a 19-foot rope — woven from strands of her own hair!

Mrs. Chavez was convicted of killing her husband and his lover back in 1974 and sentenced to life without parole at the notorious Cortez Women's Prison. She was placed in the tower — the top floor of the dilapidated four-story building where the most violent women at the prison were being kept.

But after serving 22 years at Cortez, often called Lugar Del Diablo — "The Devil's Place," — the bold 41-year-old convict stunned prison officials and the world by making her daring escape.

"It's the most brazen and clever prison break ever attempted," said noted penologist Miguel Ortega who has spent his 13-year career studying the Spanish prison system.

"This woman cut her hair every six months for 22 years. She painstakingly hand-tied the individual hairs together, forming hundreds of long slender strands and stored them inside her moth-eaten mattress. Then she wove the strands together to create a 19-foot 'rope.'

"The window wasn't barred because prison officials figured no one could jump 40 feet without breaking her legs.

"In the dead of night, Mrs. Chavez lowered herself halfway down, then dropped 15 feet to the ground without injury. She is still at large."

At first Dr. Ortega and his staff couldn't understand how Mrs. Chavez's hair could have reached such a length in only 22 years.

"Human hair only grows six inches a year," said Dr. Ortega.

"But we realize now that she cut clumps of hair from lots of different places on her head and strengthened the slim woven cord by covering it with some of the shellac the prisoners used to polish the warden's furniture."

Prison warden Lupe Delgado refused an interview but issued this statement: "The press is romanticizing this escape, but we want the public to remember that this is a dangerous woman who slashed two people to death with a carving knife. When she's recaptured, we'll put her in solitary where Thrown boomerang returns to owner two years later!

SYDNEY, Australia — A man threw a boomerang so far that it disappeared — and came back to him two years later!

In 1994, Ian Morgan, 33, was showing his son how to fling the wing-shaped toy, when he threw it so far it disappeared over the horizon.

"I waited for it to come back, but it never did," said Morgan.

Then just last week, Morgan found his boomerang in his front yard. He identified it as his because he'd inscribed his name on it, Australian newspapers report.

"It's baffling. I wish boomerangs could talk. I'd like to know where this one's been."

AIR-CONDITIONED SHOES ARE HOT IN EUROPE!

MILAN, Italy — European shoe designers have come up with a new style of footwear for the summer — air-conditioned shoes!

"We put a small, battery-powered fan inside the sole, directly below the arch of the foot to avoid as much pressure on the fan as possible," top Italian footwear designer Sergio Paolucci explained. "The air comes up through small holes, circulating around the entire foot."

RED-FACED TRUTH!

Eye-opening facts about why you get embarrassed

Do you know why you get embarrassed — or how to cope with situations that make you blush?

Here's what the experts know about embarrassment.

By JUNE SAWYER
Weekly World News

Q. — Is a woman more easily embarrassed than a man?

A. — No. Psychological studies show women have much more social poise than men, and are better able to take an embarrassing moment in stride.

Q. — Is a person with a high opinion of himself the most easily embarrassed?

A. — No. People with low self-esteem are most easily embarrassed by real or imagined criticism of their clothes, attitudes or manners. They tend to feel others are judging them and finding them wanting. And their low self-esteem makes them believe the negative evaluations are valid.

Q. — Do shy people believe their birthday is the most embarrassing day of the year?

A. — Yes. A Harvard University study finds that being the focal point of "Happy Birthday to You" is a major source of embarrassment.

Q. — What's the easiest way to make a man blush?

A. — Tell him something's wrong with his clothes — especially in mixed company. That wouldn't embarrass a woman, it would just make her annoyed. And women don't blush as easily as men. Anger is more likely to make her cheeks red.

Q. — Are we more easily embarrassed as we get older?

A. — No. The adolescent years are when we are the most prone to embarrassment.

Q. — Is the best way to cope with an embarrassing moment simply to act as though nothing happened?

A. — No. That often increases the tension of everyone involved. A sociological study shows that the best way to cope is to laugh it off. This invites others to view the moment as something they can laugh at, too.

Q. — Do most embarrassing moments result from accidents?

A. — Yes. A Rutgers University study cites typical examples: A woman loses her bathing suit top at the beach; a man walks into a women's rest room. One of the most excruciatingly embarrassing moments, reported a leading psychologist, came when an immaculately dressed after-dinner speaker discovered in mid-speech that his pants were unzipped.

Priest holding funerals for cars!

Love is blind! Veiled brides get mixed up at the altar — and marry the wrong men!

By CHARLES GEORGE / Weekly World News

Two Hindu brides gave new meaning to the expression "love is blind" when they married the wrong men — because they couldn't see through their veils!

Now the blushing brides are grief-stricken because village elders say the marriages cannot be undone.

"I'm heartbroken over this," said Saroj Banarjee, who ended up being hitched to Tamal Kumar instead of Navin Faridi. "My parents arranged my marriage to Navin when we were both little babies.

"I've know him all my life and dreamed of our wedding day. Then this happened. It's too awful to even think about."

The mix-up occurred when the two marriage parties arrived in Patan, a village in central India, at the same time. The ceremonies were rushed and the long veils worn by the brides obscured their vision so much they couldn't pick out the right fiance.

Following Hindu tradition, Saroj grabbed the hand of the man she thought was Navin and walked around a fire seven times, sealing the marriage. Chandra Misra, the other bride, then completed "the seven steps" with the second groom.

"I had no idea I wasn't marrying Navin until I lifted the veil and looked into the eyes of a stranger," said Saroj. "I was stunned."

Chandra is just as heartbroken as Saroj over the bizarre turn of events.

"My life is ruined and there's nothing I can do about it," she moaned. "It's terrifying.

"I'm married to a man who is a total stranger and the village elders say we can never do anything about it."

A village elder said centuries-old law dictates that the couples stay together.

"Once a couple has taken the seven perambulations around the sacred fire, the marriage is sealed," said village elder Paras Mukker.

"There can be no exchange of spouses, even if we wanted to allow it."

VEILS worn by two Indian brides obscured their vision so much they wed the wrong grooms.

7 SIMPLE STEPS TO NEVER BEING LONELY AGAIN!

By TOM KELLY / Weekly World News

You can easily give loneliness a slap in the face by following these tips from an expert:

● Go to shopping malls frequently.

They're good places to meet people as you rest on mall benches, shop or eat.

In mall eating areas, it's especially easy to strike up conversations, explains psychiatrist Dr. Robert Amstadter.

"You can ask nearby diners to pass you the salt or napkins, or simply ask where they purchased some delectable-looking item on their plate."

● Attend seminars. They are often free and cover a broad range of topics such as real estate and self-improvement. You can easily start conversations by asking others if they've heard the speaker before, or asking them what they thought of the material discussed.

● Write letters to editors of newspapers and magazines. Even if they aren't published, you'll keep busy and also begin feeling a connection to other letter writers.

● Send for free catalogues and literature. "In short time, your mailbox will be brimming," says Dr. Amstadter. "With mail streaming in regularly, you'll be kept too busy reading to dwell on your loneliness."

● Attend public hearings. These are also free, and you'll feel good about yourself by taking an active role in helping the community.

You'll also find plenty of people willing to talk to you, said Dr. Amstadter, an expert in the study of human relationships.

● Check out garage sales and weekend flea markets. Not only will you meet a variety of people — you might even find some good buys!

● Call radio talk shows. As a regular listener and caller, you'll soon feel like you're part of the show's "family."

BEAT loneliness by following some easy steps from an expert.

A LITTLE SUGAR GOES A LONG WEIGH!

Sugar and added fat increase the calorie content of the foods you eat. Here are some comparisons to consider.

A slice of French bread is 70 calories but a croissant is a whopping 230 calories.

A half a cup of peaches canned in juice is 55 calories while half a cup of peaches canned in heavy syrup is 95 calories.

A medium-sized apple is 80 calories but a slice of apple pie is 455 calories.

DEADLY MARS ROCK VIRUS INFECTS FOUR RESEARCHERS!

HIGH-POWERED MICROSCOPE captured features of Martian life form's head in stunning detail!

WASHINGTON — After finding evidence of life in a Martian meteorite, frantic scientists have locked up the famous rock and quarantined four people — because the mysterious life form they discovered appears to be spreading a deadly virus!

The minute bug-like creatures, which apparently died billions of years ago, harbor a virulent extraterrestrial microbe that has already infected at least four men, killing one. The victims — all of whom had worked closely with the meteorite — become gravely ill with bizarre physical symptoms, according to a source with close ties to NASA.

"They develop an extremely low body temperature, hard, leathery skin and an insatiable appetite and thirst," said Dr. David Connert, a molecular biologist with contacts at the highest levels of the space agency. "Their behavior becomes highly irrational and they break out in enormous purple blotches.

"The disease process is slow and agonizing. All the victims went into a steady decline, and one has already died. Doctors have tried everything to help them, but nothing works."

Dr. David Connert

According to Dr. Connert's NASA sources, the first signs of the virus showed up two days after scientists announced they'd discovered life on Mars. They had found the fossilized remains of ancient microbes inside a meteorite which traveled from Mars to Earth 4.5 million years ago.

The extraterrestrial life forms had died billions of years ago — but apparently a primitive virus which had infected the organisms remained alive and virulent. NASA scientists found that out when four key researchers came down with bizarre symptoms a few days after handling the Martian meteorite.

"They're really concerned that they've unleashed something in working on that rock and they've tried to seal off the area and quarantine the sick guys," Dr. Connert said. "But the fear is that they can't contain this thing.

"The rock has been handled by dozens of people and the victims were in contact with scores more before they started showing symptoms. Worse still, they don't know what this virus is or how to defend against it. The disease has survived for billions of years inside a space rock — it may be indestructible.

"If they can't contain this thing and figure out how to stop it, the whole human species may fall victim to this extraterrestrial bug."

Music store offers free compact discs to nude customers!

MELBOURNE, Australia — A record store was swamped with customers when the manager offered to give away free compact discs — to anyone who stripped naked.

The doors had barely opened before the shop was jammed with hundreds of people taking all of their clothes off.

And the delighted store owner, Jeff Harrison, helped by urging his customers to sing, dance and strip if they wanted freebies.

Jeff even had a small band to liven the festivities. Band members were naked, too.

"The whole idea was to put fun back into buying music," said Jeff. "We had one of these nude days before but it didn't work as well as this one.

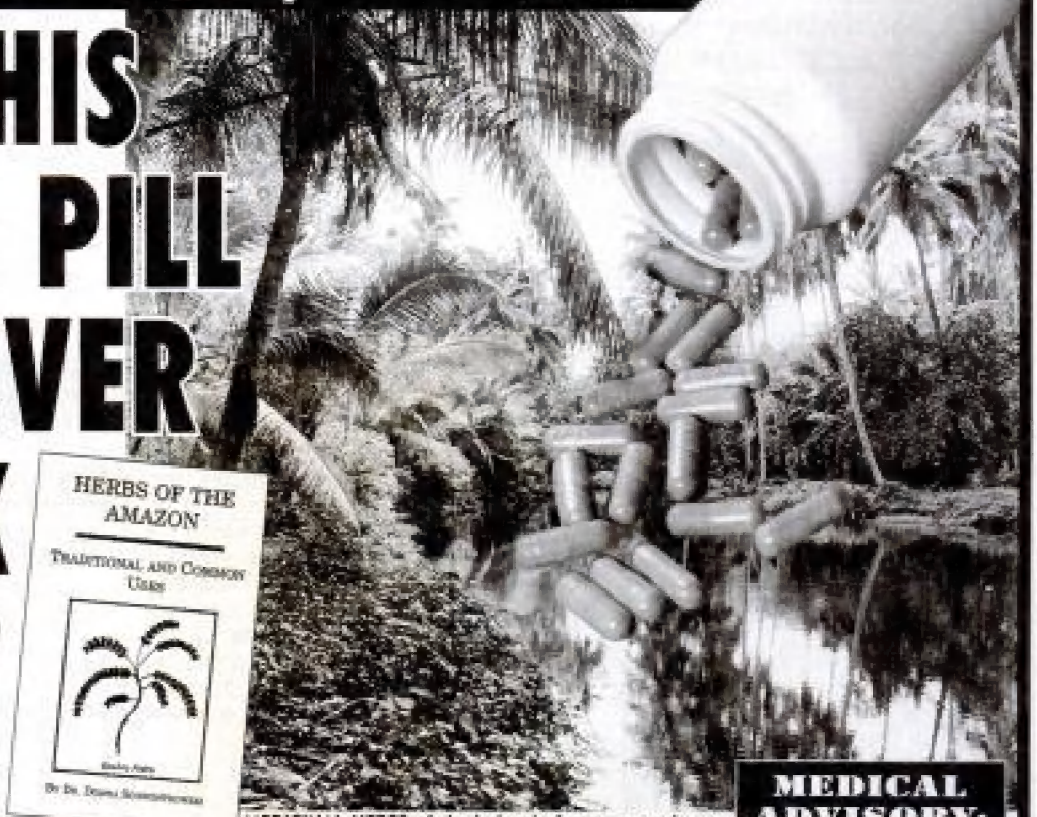
Rain Forest herb for just about everything — and it's available everywhere!

MIRACLE HERB Una de Gato costs just pennies a day.

TAKE THIS JUNGLE PILL AND NEVER BE SICK AGAIN?



MEDICINAL HERBS of the lush rain forests are only now coming to the attention of experts like Dr. Donna Schwontkowski, author of the book Herbs of the Amazon, left.

MEDICAL ADVISORY: Always consult a physician before treating yourself for any illness or changing your diet in any way.

SPECIAL REPORT

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah — What is considered by many to be one of the most powerful medicines on the planet is available everywhere — and costs just pennies a day. The rain forest herb Una de Gato not only boosts the immune system and cleanses the colon, it can shrink tumors, strengthen the heart, boost energy and beat both allergies and arthritis, excited researchers report.

Incredibly, there is more. According to Dr. Donna Schwontkowski, author of the important book, Herbs of the Amazon, Traditional and Common Uses, Una de Gato — which means "cat's claw" in Spanish — is widely used to treat asthma, neuralgia, poor circulation, stomach pain and ulcers, leaky bowel syndrome, gastritis, hemorrhoids and infections of all kinds. It is even said to stop colds and flu in their tracks — and is known as a powerful antioxidant that neutralizes cancer-causing "free radicals" in the body, possibly helping to stop or even reverse the ravages of aging.

"They also are among the most thoroughly tested, having been used by the indigenous peoples of the Amazon for hundreds of years."

Dr. Schwontkowski isn't the only expert singing the praises of Una de Gato, which is derived from the bark of a thorny vine that grows abundantly in the Amazon rain forest.

According to the health journal Newlife, research in Italy, Germany, Austria, Hungary, England and Peru has uncovered evidence to suggest that the amazing herb can be beneficial in the treatment of cancer, arthritis, bursitis, irregularities of the menstrual cycle, intestinal disorders, organic depression and, mind-bogglingly, AIDS.

Dr. Brent Davis, who has worked with Una de Gato in the United States, has referred to this herb as "The Opener of the Way" because of what he calls its remarkable ability to cleanse the entire intestinal tract. The herb helps patients suffering from many different stomach and bowel disorders, including Crohn's disease, diverticulitis, leaky bowel syndrome, colitis, hemorrhoids, fistulas, gastritis, ulcers, parasites and intestinal flora imbalance, Newlife said.

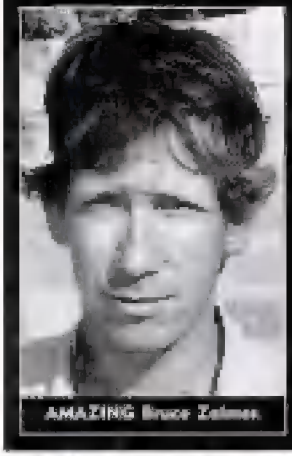
MR. FIREPROOF: Incredible cell structure makes Ohio man immune to flames!



AMAZING Bruce Zalmer.

By RANDY JEFFRIES / Weekly World News

CLEVELAND, Ohio — Amazing Bruce Zalmer has doctors baffled. He's the only human in history who's entirely fireproof!

Bruce, 32, was born with a cell structure that lets his skin, blood and nerves stand up to raw, searing flames without pain or damage.

And his lungs can draw oxygen from the smokiest air.

He once saved a family of four from a burning building after the fire department had given up all hope of getting them out alive.

But modest Bruce balks at the word "hero."

"There was nothing heroic about it," he says of the incident that occurred five years ago, back in 1991.

"It's not like I was risking anything. I simply walked in and carried them out. Fire has no effect on me."

The hardworking lawn-care worker has been the subject of 124 articles in scientific publications worldwide including The French Medical Journal and The Swiss Journal of Medical Science. But no one has studied the incredible father of three more intensely than noted biologist Dr. Doris Chong, who gave up her duties at a prestigious California university and moved to Cleveland to devote all her time to Bruce's case.

BIOLOGIST Dr. Doris Chong.

"Two things distinguish Mr. Zalmer," says Dr. Chong. "First, skin samples from his arms and stomach have been shown to contain some of the same properties as asbestos. The tissues actually repel flame and disperse heat.

"Secondly, his lungs have a semi-permeable coating over them that lets him filter smoky air.

"The chances of a man being born with even one of these amazing qualities are astronomical. But to have both . . . well the odds are right off the chart."

Bruce is often called upon to give demonstrations of his skill at medical laboratories throughout the world. He usually cooperates but he dislikes all the attention.

HOLLYWOOD'S ANSWER GIRL

Q I think Keanu Reeves is the most gorgeous hunk in America. Is he cocky about his looks or is he one of those guys who doesn't realize how handsome he is?

— Laura M., Fremont, Neb.

A The Speed hotshot is one of those guys who knows EXACTLY how handsome he is. Keanu recently admitted, "I'm pretty vain. I like to stay in touch with my body. I do weights, go running. And I do enjoy flirting"

Q At age 32, model Lauren Hutton looks more smashing than ever. What's her secret?

— Diann G., Lake Tahoe, Nev.

A The stunning star says she uses this simple technique: "I drink large quantities of water. I use a lot of hydrating creams — and I make love once a day with an Italian!"

Q I love all the movies of hot young director Robert Rodriguez, who made Desperado, El Mariachi and From Dusk to Dawn. Before becoming famous, what did he do — work as a video store clerk like Quentin Tarantino?

— Raphael O., El Paso, Texas

A Actually, before hitting it big, the cash-strapped aspiring filmmaker made ends meet by renting out his body to researchers testing new drugs. "I became a human lab rat," recalls the risk-taking Rodriguez, 27. "I'd look into a hospital and they'd pump me full of drugs."

Once, he collected $1,500 for letting researchers cut his arms to test out a supposed "speed-healing" medication. "I still have the scars," he says.

IN TOUCH WITH HIS BODY: Keanu Reeves.

Q Now that Princess Di and Prince Charles are finally getting their divorce, Queen Elizabeth will have to fork over millions to her son's ex in the settlement. Where will the Queen get the money?

— Larry C., Enid, Okla.

A The British monarch is cutting back every way she can to afford the estimated $23 million payout. For example, handicapped children and the mentally ill were told they now have to pay to visit Windsor Castle — just like anyone else. Previously, they were allowed in free. The adults will have to cough up $12, kids $6, to see the royal dwelling. Advocates for the handicapped blasted the nickel-squeezing move as "unfair."

FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH: Lauren Hutton.

Q I loved Bruce Willis' time-travel flick 12 Monkeys. Has anyone asked the star if he'd like to travel in time for real?

— Connie B., Fayetteville, N.C.

A Yes. And the wise-cracking actor replied, "I'd like to go back in time to when I could meet Jesus. I'd like to go back in time to when I had more hair. And most important, I'd like to go back to three weeks before I decided to do Hudson Hawk!"

Q To me, Isabella Rossellini is the picture of classic beauty — just like her mom Ingrid Bergman. Just curious though: Has the actress appeared naked in any movies available on video?

— Frank L., Terre Haute, Ind.

THE QUEEN OF MEAN: Queen Elizabeth.

A Just one. Pop the David Lynch cult classic Blue Velvet into your VCR — but don't expect a turn-on. Isabella deliberately didn't diet beforehand or strike sexy poses in her outdoor nude scene.

"It was about a battered and sexually abused woman," she says in Interview magazine.

"David Lynch didn't want me to walk down the street in an appealing, sexy way, but in a disturbed way that would frighten you. I chose the gesture from the famous photo of that Vietnamese girl walking away from a napalm bomb."

Q I understand that nimble Rumble in the Bronx hero Jackie Chan does all his own stunts. Doesn't he ever get hurt?

— Jon S., Brandon, Fla.

A The Hong Kong kung fu comedy king has really suffered for his art. While filming various action movies, Jackie has cracked his skull when a branch he was swinging on broke, temporarily lost hearing in one ear, injured his neck in a fall from a clock tower, been sideswiped by a helicopter, broken his nose three times, suffered fractures to his fingers and limbs, and been repeatedly cut by shattered glass.

I WANT TO MEET JESUS: Bruce Willis.

Most recently, in Rumble, the gutsy star broke his ankle while jumping onto a hovercraft.

DECISIONS OF THE JUDGES ARE FINAL.

My wife tried to kill me seven times

. . . but I still love her!

By KEVIN CREED / Weekly World News

LA JOLLA, Calif. — Loving hubby Harold Millwether says he's crazy about his pretty wife Suzanne, but those who know him think he's just plain crazy — because the woman he loves has tried to kill him seven different times!

Millwether, a 48-year-old stockbroker, refuses to divorce his murderous mate even though it's cost him the support of friends and family. He won't press charges, and when officials tried to convict his wife of attempted murder, he refused to cooperate or testify against Suzanne.

"Without her, my life wouldn't be worth living," says Millwether, who blames Suzanne's bouts with PMS for her urge to kill. "I love her and I know she loves me — even if she's made a few mistakes."

But authorities say Suzanne's "mistakes" were deliberate attempts to kill her husband and they're worried that Suzanne will try again — and succeed. In what authorities believe is an ongoing attempt to inherit Millwether's substantial fortune, the 47-year-old woman has tried a number of slay schemes so far:

- She poisoned his afternoon gin and tonic, but he noticed a strange taste and threw it out.
- She hired someone to chase him down the freeway and run his car off the road, but Millwether refused to budge — and the other guy lost control of his auto.
- She dropped a radio into his bath, but the plug came out.
- She arranged a drive-by shooting, but the contract killer's gun jammed.
- She drugged him and attempted to smother him, but he managed to fight her off.
- She shot at him during a hunting trip, but missed every shot.
- She tried to run him down with her car but he dodged the vehicle just in time.

Millwether says he and his butchering bride have had a serious talk about the murder attempts and everything is straightened out between them. And Suzanne swears she's no longer dying to see her hubby die.

"I was angry with Harold, but that's all behind us now," said Suzanne, whose attempts to kill her husband have been featured in a series of local newspaper articles.

"He is so forgiving, so loyal — I realize now that nobody else could love me like he does.

"With all my heart, I want to make it up to Harold for what I've done. Now, if only the police would leave us alone, we could be as happy as we were the day we married."

LOVESTRUCK HUBBY Harold Millwether refuses to divorce his murderous wife Suzanne.

FOR WOMEN ONLY

7 secrets for attracting men

Tired of being the INVISIBLE WOMAN? You can get men to notice you — and remember you — by following seven surefire tips from a psychologist.

Here are Dr. Elayne Kahn's time-tested suggestions:

1. Develop a style of dress that is uniquely yours. "For instance, be known for wearing extravagant earrings or eye-catching necklaces," said Dr. Kahn. "I have one friend who always wears long, Indian-style dresses that expose her midriff. Men may not fail to notice — and remember her."

By ELAINE ROBERTS
Weekly World News

2. Be bold. "I was leaving a party one time with two male friends when a woman came up to one and said, 'Oh, please don't leave yet. I was hoping you would have a slow dance with me,' " recalled Dr. Kahn. "Of course, he stayed — and my other male friend couldn't stop talking about her."

3. Give him a sexy look. "It's one of the oldest tricks in the book — and it never fails," said Dr. Kahn, co-author of Love Codes: How to Decipher Men's Secret Signals About Romance.

4. Get him to talk about himself. "Ask him what his interests are," she suggested. "And when he's talking, don't just stand there nodding your head. Ask him questions. The woman who makes a lasting impression is the one who cares about more than herself."

5. Try to find things you have in common. It could be an old movie you both liked or a special place you've both visited. Or if he's divorced and talking about his children, you could say, "I just got the most adorable present for my nephew. I bet your son would love one, too."

6. As you're talking, gently touch him on the arm. It creates a special intimacy between the two of you.

7. Compliment him. "We all remember praise and the person who gives it," said Dr. Kahn. "So pick out something about him that you find attractive — and tell him."

WHACKING naughty children is a time-honored tradition in the South.

Southern parents spank their children — while Yankees coddle kids, says study

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. — Folks north of the Mason-Dixon Line tend to spare the rod, experts say — while Southerners are more apt to whale the daylights out of naughty kids.

That's the fascinating finding of researchers at the University of Virginia, who interviewed 729 families with children ages 1 to 5 in day-care centers in Massachusetts, Georgia and Virginia.

By SUSAN JIMISON
Weekly World News

The researchers found that when it comes to disciplining preschoolers, Yankees would rather persuade while Southerners are quicker to paddle. Northerners use distractions, send kids to the corner for "time out" or offer bribes to make the children behave.

And if these techniques don't work, they resort to pleading with their kids to behave or to ignoring their mischief altogether.

The study, which was funded by the National Institutes of Health, found that overall, 70 percent of parents admitted they'd used physical punishment at least once. But a number of moms said they used only "time out" and other lenient punishments more than 90 percent of the time. The scientists found that black parents were stricter, no matter where they lived, opting to spank their youngsters more often than white parents.

"This verifies several previous studies that indicate there are racial differences in discipline," said psychologist Sandra Scarr, who was involved in the fascinating child-rearing study.

Man who blew up cat did city a favor, says judge

LONDON, England — Raging-mad pet owners are ready to string up a judge to the highest tree because he refused to jail a man who blew up a cat with a firecracker.

I'M GETTING READY FOR THE END OF THE WORLD!

KA-PLOOEY! The world will end in the year 2000, says Ed.

I'm madder than a hungry lion gnawing on a skinny Christian over the way the idiot liberals are bitching and moaning about the latest survey of America's religious beliefs.

A recent USA TODAY/CNN/Gallup Poll stunned the nation by showing that an incredible 90 percent of Americans believe in Heaven, 79 percent believe in miracles — and a whopping 72 percent are certain that angels exist, by gum.

Not only that, 27 percent believe in reincarnation and 28 percent of all Americans believe you can contact the dead.

And guess who's crying bloody murder over these electrifying findings?

The stupid bleeding-heart liberals, that's who.

"This is just another ploy by Republicans and the dumb Americans who vote for them to force prayer back into our public schools," sniffed a lesbian atheist spokeswoman for the National Organization for Women.

But the real icing on the cake, by jiminey, was a block-buster U.S. News and World Report survey showing that 61 percent, or 200 million Americans, believe Jesus Christ will return to Earth.

Forty-four percent believe there will be a final battle of Armageddon sometime soon. And half of all Americans believe there is an Anti-Christ.

USA TODAY/CNN/Gallup Poll says that faith in God is on the rise.

Well, when you're counting up the true believers, buddy, count me in. In fact, I'm so certain that the world will end in the year 2000 that I'm spending my retirement nest egg as fast as I can — mostly on my family. I've even cashed out the college fund I set up for my little grandson Teddy — because by the time he's 18, he'll be in Heaven instead of Harvard.

What's more, I've started making the family go to church twice on Sunday, something we haven't done since the kids were little.

Not that I'm all that worried about meeting my Maker, friends, considering that the only thing I've ever done in my life that anyone might call bad is kill 104 Koreans back in 1951-52. And you and I both know that God was on our side in that one.

But I am concerned about making sure the whole Anger clan is sitting on the same cloud up there when the world ends, if you know what I mean.

So I'll be watching my entire family like a hawk for the next few years. And the minute one of them steps out of line, they'll have Hell to pay here on Earth, I'll tell you that — because you and I both know that's a lot better than the Hell they'll face if they don't shape up before the final curtain comes down.

COURAGEOUS LADY Ashley Pardisi and a pal demonstrate how she poured boiling water on the creep's family jewels.

GAL POURS

NEW YORK CITY — A lust-crazed creep attacked dazzling Ashley Pardisi in her apartment and tried to rape her, but the courageous lady fought off the sicko and sent him screaming into the night — by pouring an enormous pot of boiling water into his lap!

"The guy had a knife and I realize now he could have cut my throat, but at the time I didn't really think — I just knew I wasn't going to let him rape me, no matter what," recalled daring Ashley, 25.

"He was wrestling with me, tearing at my clothes and trying to throw me down on the couch. But somehow I got my right arm free and I slugged him in the face with all my might — and man, down he went.

"The knife flew across the room and he seemed kind of stunned, but I knew he was going to come after me and maybe kill me if I didn't do something fast — and that's when I remembered the water boiling on the stove.

"I ran and got it and poured the whole pan onto him, right where it hurts. He screamed bloody murder and ran out the door like I'd just castrated him — and for all I know, maybe I did."

Rattled Ashley's horrifying ordeal began around 7:30 one Monday night as the curvy career girl was rustling up a dinner of linguini and clam sauce in her tiny, two-room apartment.

"Suddenly I heard this commotion outside in the hallway, and like an idiot I opened the door to see what was going on," embarrassed Ashley told a reporter.

"The minute I looked out, this big, no-neck guy barged into my apartment and locked the door behind him so fast I didn't know what hit me.

THINKING YOU'RE HOT STUFF IS GOOD FOR YOU, SAYS PSYCHOLOGIST!

Seeing yourself through rose-colored glasses is good for you — because having a positive self-image helps you cope when things get tough, says a noted psychologist.

Dr. Shelley Taylor says she made this discovery when she began researching how people deal with major problems, like losing a job, and with minor ones, such as being treated rudely by a clerk.

"I identified three illusions that people seem to carry around with them to help them deal with negative events," said Dr. Taylor.

First, they have an exaggerated sense of their own importance, or their talents. Feeling good about themselves, they set high goals and are motivated hard to attain those goals.

They also get along well with others, Dr. Taylor said.

"When people feel good about themselves they are more likely to feel good about other people," she explained. "And they seem better able to handle stress."

A second illusion they have about themselves is that they are more in control of situations than they really are. This self-confidence not only helps them at work and in social situations, but also enables them to handle life's little shocks because they feel more in control.

The third illusion is an unrealistic optimism about the future.

And this rosy view of the future becomes a self-fulfilling prophecy, said Dr. Taylor, author of Positive Illusions.

"If you think you're going to succeed, you're going to work harder and longer," she said.

"If you think things are going to be bad, you've got a good shot at having them turn out that way.

"Optimism makes you say: 'Okay, I think I can do something about it.'

"The notion that things are going to get better actually helps people work their way out of a problem."

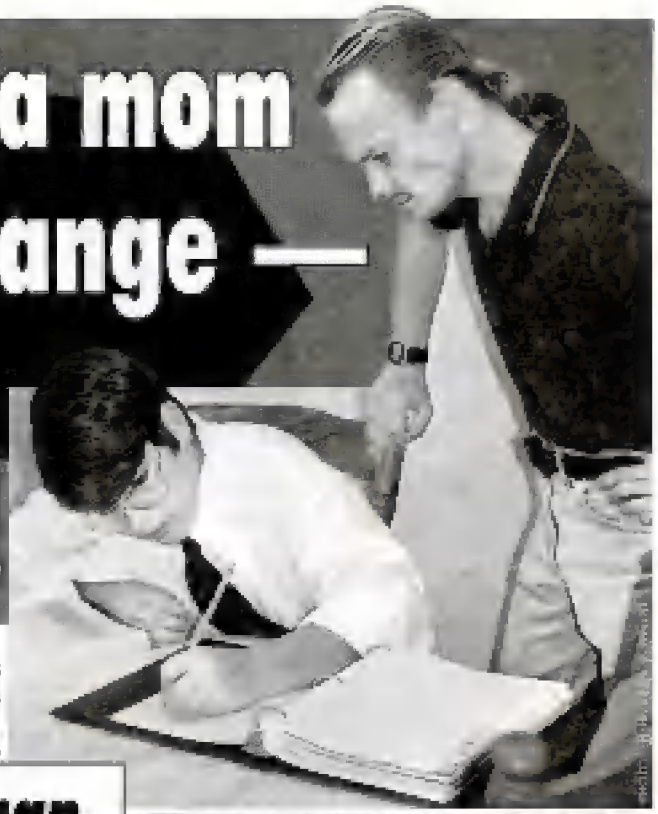
Philadelphia mom gets sex change — so her son can have a dad!



AFTER: Dating dad Lester Larieois is now the father figure that was missing from his son Joey's life.

By KEVIN CREED / Weekly World News

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. — Heroic mom Leslie Larieois made the ultimate sacrifice to give her son a father — she got a sex change!

The widowed mom-turned-dad says the pain of watching son Joey, 12, struggle through life without a paternal figure motivated the surgery that transformed her from Leslie, the tender mother, to Lester — the strong, masculine father.

'A mother's love can only go so far...that's why I became a man'

"My dear husband's death, when Joey was 5, created a huge void in the boy's life," says Lester. "I knew he needed someone to go fishing with, someone to take him to ballgames, someone to have man-to-man talks with. A mother's love can only go so far.

"I wanted to remarry but none of the men I met seemed like good father material.

"The last straw came on the night when Joey's school had a father-son barbecue. There was no one to take him. He was so hurt. I thought, 'If only I was a man . . .'

"I decided then and there to look into a sex-change operation."

The 27-year-old woman talked it over with her son, then got the surgery and became a full-fledged man on August 13.

"I feel at last like I can give Joey what he most needs," says the burly Lester. "These hormones running through my body allow me to have feelings and interests I never would have had if I had remained a woman.

"As many changes my 12-year-old son is going through, Leslie could have only given him book information about things like that, but I can relate to him guy to guy."

Lester says he sometimes regrets that his boy will have to grow up without a mother but says:

"A mother's love helped shape his character for the first 12 years of his life. Now he needs the kind of comradeship and support that only a man can give."

THE WORLD'S GREATEST PATRIOT!

Few people alive today have ever heard of Jean Theurel, but he was the most dedicated soldier of all time!

Theurel joined the French army in 1680 at the tender age of 15 to fight the Dutch. He remained on active duty, distinguishing himself in hundreds of battles, until the Emperor Napoleon finally deactivated him in 1802 at

Mean bosses beaten as babies, says study

WASHINGTON — That mean boss who snarls at you all day long is doing so because he or she was abused as a child, experts say.

"As many as one of four supervisors are running their offices the way their parents ran their households — often screaming, yelling, unfairly criticizing and engaging in other forms of abusive behavior," said a study by the Bureau of National Affairs. The private organization says nasty bosses cost U.S. companies up to $5 billion in lost revenues

Supergal catches TWO suicide jumpers — in one day!

MEXICO CITY — In a single day, a heroic woman saved TWO would-be suicide victims, catching them as they leapt from tall buildings!

At 9:15 A.M., Juanita Martinez, 32, caught Anna Torres after the troubled 14-year-old jumped from the roof of a five-story hotel.

Just four hours later, she happened to be passing as depressed Luis Munoz, 44, threw himself from a six-floor office building.

Both victims lived. After catching Mr. Munoz, Mrs. Martinez was treated for back injuries and released in good condition.

Every time I get plastered my wife gets pregnant!

WALTER in Bains.

Dear Dotti: You're not going to believe this but every time I get sauced with the boys, my wife gets pregnant and we wind up having a baby. You see, the problem is that neither one of us is willing to use birth control so we never make love. But I'm a man — and I have my needs. So unless I get drunk and force myself on her I never get my lovin'. I don't get drunk all that often but we've got five kids now and as soon as I hit the bars again you can bet number six will be on the way. Needless to say, this is an intolerable situation. What should we do? — Walter in Bains

Dear Walter: Have you considered castration?

How can I get Mom into a nursing home?

Dear Dotti: My elderly mother can't take care of herself anymore and I'm seriously thinking about putting her in a nursing home. As you might imagine, I feel like a heel. But she's making matters worse by accusing me of trying to get rid of her. How can I make her understand that a nursing home is the best thing for her? — Caroline in Oxford

Dear Caroline: Moving an elderly relative into a nursing home is never easy but there are certain strategies that can help. For starters, let your mother have a big say in choosing the nursing home that's right for her. If that doesn't work, drive to the home, push her out of the car — and get the hell out of there!

CAROLINE in Oxford.

My husband's beat-up Chevy is ruining my life!

Dear Dotti: This may sound crazy but a 36-year-old car is driving a wedge in my marriage. You see, my idiotic husband has this stupid 1960 Chevy that he insists on keeping no matter what. It's been wrecked and repaired more times than I can count and the interior is in such bad shape that he spray-painted everything — including the seats. The neighbors all hate us because the car is currently sitting in our front yard and is bringing down their property values. To make matters worse, every spare dime my husband gets goes into the car. What am I going to do? — Annette in Boynton Beach

ANNETTE in Boynton Beach.

Dear Puzzled in Gary: I don't care what your husband says — no man keeps a condom in his wallet "in case a friend needs it."

Dear Worried in Duncan: I seriously doubt you'll get AIDS from a woman who knows somebody who has a gay friend.

Dear Comedian in Ash Fork: A "big Hollywood producer" MIGHT discover you in a Rubetown like Ash Fork — but I doubt it!

Dear Revolted Gal in Chicot: If you really want to hold on to your boyfriend close your eyes — and pretend it's candy.

Dear Furious in Oakland: I don't have anything against fat people. In fact, one of my best friends is that way!

Dear Concerned: If I were you, Mom, I wouldn't worry about it. After all he could be playing with Ken dolls — and hanging out with the high school wrestling team!

We don't want our baby — how can we ditch her?

Dear Dotti: My husband and I had always dreamed of having a baby but now that we've got one we realize that we made an incredibly stupid mistake. Our daughter is constantly whining and crying and messing up her diapers. What's more, because it's so expensive to feed her, buy her clothes and take her to the doctor, we can't go out anymore because we can't afford to pay a babysitter. I'm at my wit's end — and

Dear Chelsea: You need professional help — and you need it quick. My God, girl, you can't get rid of a baby like it was an old shoe. Anybody who thinks they can is SICK!

Why don't you tell us your REAL name, Dotty?

Dear Dotty: I've been reading your column for a long, long time and I really do think it's great. I do wish you would do one thing for all us fans, however, and answer this question: Is "Dotty" your real name? — Wondering in Dundee she's been Jane ever since.

mputer programmer says she was born as an Mujoss, 74 Earth years ago on the planet Waernment, like Wa-shumm's, is democratic and people here live compatibly in neighborhoods similar to the ones on Wa-shumm."

According to Jane, Wa-shumm is an Earth-like world situated in the Sirius B System of the constellation Canis Major.

Whole neighborhoods exist in bubble-like domes that can be disassembled, moved and reassembled in less than two hours.

Jane says the people of Wa-shumm have a peaceful nature and their only enemies are a tribe of intelligent 18-foot-long centipedes that paralyze their victims and eat them alive.

"The things have even invaded Earth," Jane explains.

"But so far they've only attacked Wa-shumm's equivalent of Australia and certain very remote areas of Asia.

"On Wa-shumm, when the centipedes attack, residents move out to sea — stopping their land-bound enemies in their tracks.

"Fortunately Wa-shummians' bodies can adapt to living on land or underwater, because they have gills within their lungs, two circulatory systems and two hearts.

"They eat fish and plants from the sea and also grow vegetables hydroponically on the land."

The biggest Earth thrill for this extraterrestrial is going to the movies.

Her favorite film: E.T., of course.

"I identify with E.T.," Jane says. "Like him, despite making friends here, I long to return to my home.

"My only consolation is in knowing there are more of my crew members here walking this planet.

"I live with the hope that someday I'll meet some of them again."

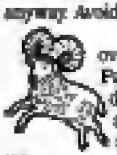
ARIES

BORN: March 21-April 19

Winter: Your psychic powers are now peaking. Friends and associates, amazed by your sudden ability to figure out their innermost thoughts and dreams, may try to avoid you for fear that you "know too much." Seek them out anyway. Avoid boasting.



Spring: Don't fret over your finances. Pay bills as they are due, or as you are able, and rest assured that something very, very good is coming your way.

Summer: The solution to your problems is as clear as the nose on your face — and just as close at hand — thanks to planetary conditions that have opened your mind to options that you couldn't see before.

Fall: A very special gift is coming your way. Accept it graciously, even if it does come from someone who has treated you badly.

TAURUS

Born: April 20-May 20

Winter: You're now looking for love and acceptance when you're already blessed with both. Stop being so hard on yourself. A stranger has an important message for you. Listen carefully — then make up your mind.

Spring: Kiss money troubles goodbye, Taurus, because a windfall is coming your way. You may be in line for an inheritance, or you may even win a big sweepstakes, but guard against being to a friend or relative will cheer him or her up — and put you in better spirits as well. Emotional ties are very important to you at this time, so go out of your way to make sure they're still binding.

Fall: There is a danger that your health may fall with the arrival of cooler weather. Take special care when you plan to be out of doors for any length of time.

GEMINI

BORN: May 21-June 20

Winter: Prepare to take advantage of a highly unusual planetary alignment that's opening doors to both financial opportunity and romance.

Don't be surprised if brilliant ideas for ensuring your financial independence come from a child.

Spring: You've been neglecting your health. Consult a doctor if necessary, and pay more attention to your diet. Sensible eating coupled with plenty of healthful exercise, will supply you with the energy you need to tackle a new and important project.

Summer: Positions of the planets have made you an attractive target for creatures of every description.

Resist the urge to lavish attention on pets other than your own.

Fall: Spruce up for the holidays. Buy a beautiful new outfit to match your personality. An old love may pop up out of nowhere.

CANCER

Born: June 21-July 22

Winter: A neighbor may try actions speak for themselves. A good friend is prepared to stick his neck out and confide in you. Avoid the temptation to blab his secrets to the world.

Spring: Get out of the house and reassess the world from your own special perspective. A trip with family or friends would be ideal. There's more to life than work.

Summer: You never thought it would happen, but you and your loved ones are finally seeing eye to eye. Suddenly, you're spending every available moment together — and loving every minute of it.

Fall: Broaden your circle of friends. Cultivate out-and-out strangers, to ensure that you continue to benefit from different ways of thinking.

LEO

BORN: July 23-Aug. 22

Winter: A reunion with old friends or schoolmates brings you much pleasure and pain. Don't deny your emotions, but keep the situation in perspective.

Nothing can change the fine showing you've made for yourself under difficult circumstances. You have much to be proud of — and people know it.

Spring: You're due to receive a gift from a surprise source. You might even find a great deal of money. Meanwhile don't let an unruly child rule your life. Lay down the law. Then get out and have for a promotion at work or a leap of prestige at home. Let nothing stand in the way of getting it.

You've been working hard and the people around you know it. Celebrate with your friends and loved ones.

Fall: What appears to be a romantic catastrophe is actually the best thing to happen to you in quite some time. The alignment of planets governing love leaves no doubt that you're soon to be in the arms of someone who adores you.

VIRGO

BORN: Aug. 23-Sept. 22

Winter: Pay more attention to your bank account. An error could cost you dearly and be terribly hard to resolve. A friend may come to you for a loan, but don't be too eager to hand it over.

Spring: Put yourself in your sweetheart's place and you'll probably find out that you've been far too critical and demanding. Take some time to do the things you really enjoy doing. You might even want to splurge on a party.

Summer: Prospects are good that you and a new friend will earn money hand over fist. You may even feel confident enough as a team to pool your profits in a second, far more risky financial scheme. If so, consult loved ones before taking the plunge.

Fall: You're daydreaming constantly about the trip you couldn't afford earlier this year. Now that your financial situation has im-

LIBRA

BORN: Sept. 23-Oct. 22

Winter: Your sweetheart is in need of extra-special care and attention. If possible, plan an evening out together at least once a week. Dinner and a movie will do the trick, especially if you emphasize how much you really care the whole time you're out.

Spring: Your emotional strength is pushed to the limit when tragedy strikes a person close to you. As usual, you come through with flying colors, and gain even more respect than you enjoy already.

Summer: Be on the lookout for hidden treasure. You might find a valuable coin, lost jewelry or a priceless artifact. Discuss your finances with someone you respect and admire, but don't be too quick to trust another's judgment. Your own instincts are sharp during this period.

Fall: Being invited to share in a friend's happiness is wonderful, indeed — and that's exactly what you're in for. Someone close to you is getting married, or, better yet, expecting a baby. Join the celebration.

SCORPIO

BORN: Oct. 23-Nov. 21

Winter: You have the urge to spread your wings and get away from it all, but financial woes are holding you back. Instead, look for inexpensive getaways close to home. Someone close to you may soon be dealt a great hand and will remember you.

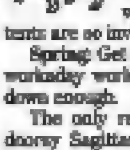
Spring: A new acquaintance sons. Spend some time at a library reading about places abroad and world affairs.

Fall: Make your surroundings more enjoyable. Redecorate your home or spend time rearranging the furniture. Do some baking for loved ones. Homemade goodies mean more to a person than something bought in a store.

SAGITTARIUS

BORN: Nov. 22-Dec. 21

Winter: You're down in the dumps because someone you love dearly is toying with your heart. The solution, of course, is to consider severing all ties with him or her and striking out on your own. Fun-loving, compassionate Sagittarians have no trouble finding sweethearts who'll love and respect them. That is especially true now, when astrological portents are so inviting.



Spring: Get closer to nature. The workaday world has dragged you down enough.

The only respite for an outdoorsy Sagittarian like you is a dyed-in-the-wool getaway. If anybody is due for one, it's you.

Summer: You could find yourself winning a most handsome reward, either financially or in terms of prestige, for all the hard work you've been doing in the home or at work. With extra income, you might want to consider paying off all your charge cards, and then getting rid of them.

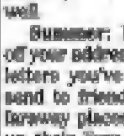
Fall: A long-lost friend pays you a visit and strikes up fond memories. What better time than the holidays to eat, drink, and be merry with a good friend. Just be careful not to spoil things by overindulging. While you're in cheery spirits, why not visit shut-ins at your local hospital or nursing home and share some of the joy?

CAPRICORN

BORN: Dec. 22-Jan. 19

Winter: Review the year you've just managed so well and consider demanding a well-deserved raise from their bosses. All others should ask for a bit more respect at home.

Spring: Beware the urge to think only of yourself. Try volunteering a few hours a week at a hospital or health center. There are people who greatly need your help. In matters of chance, number 7 could serve you well.



Summer: Dust the cobwebs off your address book. Write those letters you've been meaning to send to friends and relatives in faraway places. You will brighten up their lives — and there just die of a family argument you have no business being in. Since you're there, the least you can do is avoid taking sides. Encourage those involved to look at both sides of the coin, then give them a chance at their own conclusions.

AQUARIUS

BORN: Jan. 20-Feb. 18

Winter: A terribly troubled friend needs your help. Being the sensitive person you are, Aquarius, you feel compelled to lend a hand, no matter what the cost. That's fine, if you're careful not neglect yourself or your loved ones. Your family needs you, too.

Spring: Financial matters are not your strong suit, Aquarius. Seek the advice of a professional accountant or financial planner. Be wary of those who promise you the moon. Chances are, they're not even familiar with the terrain.

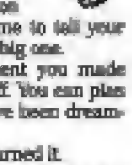
Summer: Romance is featured this summer, and don't be surprised if the unlikeliest of suitors sends your heart reeling. Take it slow, Aquarius, if you can. You don't want to send your catch hightailing for the hills. By the same token, married Aquarians should be careful not to smother their spouses with attention.

Fall: So why have you been putting off all the work that needs to be done around the house? Get with it, Aquarius, and put your home in order before the holidays. Enlist the help of friends. Ask relatives for a helping hand. You've been helping them left and right. Now's the time for return of favors.

PISCES

BORN: Feb. 19-March 20

Winter: Goals and dreams that seemed impossible just a few weeks ago are now within reach. You're charged with psychic and physical energies that are so strong you'll be tempted to spend them frivolously. Instead, apply them at home, at work and in romance to secure the recognition and respect you deserve.



Spring: Now that your financial situation is improved, buy that luxury item you want. If you work, suggest ways to improve conditions on the job. This is an ideal time to tell your boss you want a raise — a big one.

Summer: An investment you made earlier in the year pays off. You can plan that fall vacation you have been dreaming about.

Go for it. You earned it.

Fall: The young child of a friend sparks a great creative idea. Act on it!

It could change your life life in a big way — for the better.

7-foot-tall creature sends scientists flocking to California!

Baby dinosaur spotted in Yosemite Park!

By LISA MERAKIS / Weekly World News

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. — Scientists are rushing to investigate reports that a real live dinosaur has been sighted in Yosemite National Park and is roaming the forests of the Sierra Nevada Mountains.

Photos and descriptions of the beast provided by tourists Anne and Dennis Plaice have convinced experts that the 7-foot-tall creature is a living relic from prehistoric times. The couple say they awoke one morning to discover the animal — believed to be a baby triceratops — nosing around their campsite.

BIOLOGIST Dr. Arthur Styls.

"The pictures speak for themselves," said Dr. Arthur Styls, a noted biologist called in to investigate the bizarre sighting. "They have convinced my colleagues and me that this is the real thing — a living, breathing dinosaur.

"It's critical that we find this creature because there is little likelihood that it could survive a mountain winter. We also need to know if it is alone or if there are others like it out there. If it's one of a kind — a baby that for some reason hatched after millions of years — it represents a unique opportunity scientists cannot afford to miss."

The Plaices were on their summer vacation and staying at a small campground in the park when the stunning sighting occurred. The weather had been rainy and the campground was deserted except for Anne, 22, and Dennis, 24.

"Just before the sun came up we heard something moving outside our tent," Dennis recalled. "We got up to investigate and when we opened the tent we were looking at an enormous gray-green, leathery-skinned reptile. I quick grabbed the camera and snapped a couple of pictures.

"The creature was about 12 feet long and had bright yellow eyes. It was standing by our food with its snout in a box of canned goods. When it realized we were there it got scared, lumbered into the underbrush and disappeared."

The Plaices reported their amazing experience to park rangers, but no one took them seriously. When they returned home they had their photos developed and then reported the sighting again — this time to Dr. Styls and his colleagues.

The biologist sent a team of scientists to the campground and the experts quickly concluded from the animal's tracks that the Plaices had seen a young triceratops.

"We know of one recent case in which a Nevada man found a nest of allosaurus eggs, several of which eventually hatched," Dr. Styls said. "So it's possible that this is another hatch — in this case of an egg dating from the Cretaceous period.

"The animal's trail ended in a stream bed, but we're still looking for it. It could make the past come alive for us. If we can track it down, it'll be an unbelievable breakthrough."

38 DIE AFTER GAZING AT ANTIQUE MIRROR!

By LILA SCHVANDT
Weekly World News

PARIS — Antique dealers have contacted the media in France and abroad warning colleagues and consumers against buying a carved mahogany mirror signed "Louis Arpeau, 1742" — because the historic old piece is deadly!

The ornate looking glass has killed at least 38 people in the 250 years since it was made, apparently by refracting light in a way that triggers brain hemorrhages. Experts fear it could kill dozens more if it is not found and destroyed.

"The mirror was in a police warehouse where it had been carefully stored since it killed two people in 1910," said Emil Fresnet, head of the Paris Association of Antique Dealers.

"But it seems that someone broke into the warehouse and stole a number of items, among them the ancient mirror. We believe the thief will try to sell this mirror. We are trying to spread the word so that any dealer or potential buyer he approaches will exercise extreme caution and contact the authorities."

According to Fresnet, the antique mirror was once well-known as "The Perilous Pier Glass" because one owner after another had died while looking into it. The old looking glass changed hands a number of times over the years, sold to unsuspecting new collectors.

But when the piece killed two people at once in the drawing room of a shabby hotel in March 1910, the old mirror was confiscated as a public menace, stored in a police warehouse and forgotten.

From time to time some forensic expert would check it over and do a paper on the mirror, offering explanations for its deadly effects. In 1964, it was taken to a university lab, where scientists concluded it killed with reflected light waves.

Experts fear it could kill dozens more if not found & destroyed

"Every day that passes without finding that mirror increases the likelihood someone will die a horrible death," he said. "The police think it was stolen about three years ago, when there was a break-in at that end of the warehouse and a number of things turned up missing.

"We learned of the loss just a month ago, when a forensics professor asked to photograph the mirror for a lecture series and no one could locate it."

Fresnet says it's essential to get the word out about the mirror before it kills again.

How to get along with your boss

All bosses basically fall into three different categories, according to management expert Dr. Andrew Souverine. Here's his advice on how to deal with each kind so you can get those promotions and raises you deserve:

● Action-oriented boss. He's a tireless decision maker, handling many projects simultaneously.

"In your dealings with him, don't ramble on and waste time. Be brief and to the point. Anticipate his questions," advised Dr. Souverine. "And if you ever disagree with this type of boss, take issue with the facts, not him."

● People-oriented boss. He is a very warm and friendly person and believes in developing close relationships with his employees.

"Don't be afraid to discuss business matters. Speak softly and slowly. Try to draw out his opinions. And if you disagree with him, do it gently — don't hurt his feelings."

● Idea-oriented boss. He's a man of concepts, tends to be a highly analytical person and likes to explore all of the possibilities.

Don't expect this boss to get involved in nitty-gritty details.

Try to implement his ideas, leaving him free to develop new

Incredible recipe for success REVEALED!

Mom turns dumb kids into geniuses with . . .

SUPERSTEW

'My children's grades have SOARED since they began eating it!'

— CREATIVE MOM Kathryn Comestock

By BEATRICE DEXTER/ Weekly World News

A proud mom says her kids went from dunces to whiz kids — because of her home-cooked "smart stew"!

The superstew contains magic ingredients that stimulate brainpower and is a family favorite, according to housewife Kathryn Comestock. Since her son and daughter began eating it once a week, their grades have soared.

"I discovered an old family recipe in my grandmother's cookbook about a year ago and you wouldn't believe the difference it has made in my family," said Kathryn, a widow who lives in Seattle, Wash.

"My kids used to be real lazy when it came to school but not anymore. These days they're sharp as tacks and eager to learn — especially a day or two after they've had smart stew for dinner."

Kathryn, 33, swears that it's the poppyseeds, papaya and pumpkin she adds to her stew that stimulates her kids' brainpower. She doesn't use the combination of ingredients in any other dish and never used them before she tried the stew last August.

When she cooked up her first stew, she noticed an immediate difference in her son Gregory, 10, and her daughter Rose, 11. She noticed that the kids were twice as smart after eating the dish, and soon realized that her home-made stew was pure brain food.

"Their teachers told me they'd never seen such a change in a student in such a short time and they kept asking me what happened," Kathryn said.

"About halfway through the school year I realized it was the stew. Since then I've been urging everyone to try it."

The proud mom wrote Weekly World News offering to share her recipe with readers so they could boost their brainpower, too. "It works best with children," she said in an exclusive interview. "But it'll even make adults smarter if eaten regularly.

"And the good thing about it is that it really tastes great. The flavors of the food blend together perfectly so everybody likes the stew."

Research shows that certain foods actually stimulate the mind. "The key to increased mental sharpness is influencing the levels of par-

2 Tbsp. poppy seeds
1 bay leaf, 4 sprigs parsley
Salt, pepper to taste
3 cups water

Heat oil in bottom of stew pot. Toss beef in flour and brown in oil. Remove beef and add diced onion to hot fat, sautéeing until soft and golden. Now add water, beef, papaya, potatoes, carrots, bay leaf, poppy seeds and parsley. Stir in mashed pumpkin and mix thoroughly, adding salt and pepper to taste. Allow to simmer gently on stovetop for 90 minutes, stirring often and adding more liquid if stew becomes too thick.

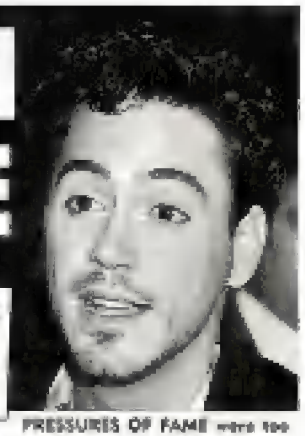
FAME AND FORTUNE CAN BE A LIVING NIGHTMARE

By JAMES BLACK / Weekly World News

. . . says new research!



PRESSURES OF FAME were too much for actor Robert Downey Jr., who now has legal problems.

Why does life become such a nightmare for many of the rich and famous that they end up as miserable recluses?

Here are some of the eye-opening reasons, according to psychiatrist Glen Bennet, an expert in celebrity behavior.

● Too much public adoration. "The rich and famous can be swamped by their own fame," said Dr. Bennet.

"The overwhelming interest of their fans in everything they do becomes a total drag."

Fans make the celebrity a symbol for their own hopes and dreams. But the famous can never fulfill everyone's expectations — so they escape from the public's adoration by shutting themselves away. Greta Garbo, for example, retired from movies at age 36 and cut herself off from the public.

Bobby Fischer, who became an instant celebrity by winning the world's chess championship, disappeared from public view 20 years ago.

● The rich and famous can't find real friends. They feel that people value them only for their wealth and their position. To escape hangers-on and money-seekers, they lock themselves away.

● Paranoia. "Millionaires who act like Howard Hughes are not always mentally ill, but because people are always asking them for money and favors, they grow to believe that everyone is after them," said Dr. Bennet. So they put up a barrier of secretaries, assistants, and security people between them and the outside world.

● Shyness. For instance, shipping magnate Daniel Ludwig — one of the world's richest men — is so wary of the public eye he has rarely been photographed, has given only one interview and refused to confirm any details for inclusion in Who's Who in America. He responds to requests for interviews by politely declaring he has "nothing of any possible interest to say."

● Shattering personal loss. Some celebrities have the spirit knocked out of them by life's events, and when things go wrong they want their privacy. Artist Salvador Dali withdrew after his wife died in 1982. "People like him lose their will to go on battling with life — often the beloved spouse was the vital support they needed to cope with the pressures of fame and fortune."

Man jailed for punching parakeet!

Matthew White landed in a pack of trouble — for punching a parakeet after it pecked him at a party.

An Isle of Wight judge ordered the 19-year-old Englishman to do 40 hours of community service for hitting the boisterous bird.

'Plastic surgeon gave me half a boob job after my check bounced!'

By LISA MERAKIS / Weekly World News

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — Lopsided secretary Andrea Freykoff is suing her plastic surgeon, claiming the man became angry when her deposit check bounced — and deliberately gave her mismatched mammaries!

The 23-year-old brunette says Dr. Miles Strewner halted her breast enlargement procedure midway through surgery and left her with an enlarged D-cup left breast and a smaller A-cup right breast. She says Dr. Strewner became furious and took revenge after he was told during the operation that a check she had given him as deposit for the surgery had been returned by the bank.

Dr. Miles Strewner

"It wasn't my fault — there was plenty of money in my account," Andrea says. "It was a bank error. But Dr. Strewner didn't want to find that out.

"Instead, he stopped what he was doing, sewed me up and left me with half a breast job. I was devastated when I woke up and found out what he'd done. I feel like a freak and I have suffered crippling depression ever since."

Andrea says she wants compensation for emotional distress and mental anguish stemming from her ordeal, punitive damages and reimbursement for the cost of surgery to repair Dr. Strewner's work. But an attorney for Dr. Strewner denies the surgeon deliberately sabotaged the breast enlargement, and claims that the botched job was an accident.

He says Dr. Strewner neglected to operate on the woman's right breast because he mistakenly thought he had already done so. By the time he discovered his error, the attorney says, Andrea was already asleep.

"That's nonsense," countered angry Andrea. "One of his nurses told me that Dr. Strewner was finished with the left breast when he got a phone call from his office.

"He came back from the call and told the nurses he was stopping the operation because he hadn't been paid.

"He finished suturing me and left my right breast untouched. The nurse told me everyone knew he was planning to do both breasts before the phone call."

Andrea says she has hired an attorney and plans to demand at least $500,000 for her botched bust.

"I don't want him doing this to anyone else," she said.

POINTING to her botched bust-job, Andrea holds the TEL AVIV, Israel — Buxom Swiss centerfold Ana Zuckschwerdt gave airport security officers here an eyeful when she set off a metal detector — and had to strip to prove she wasn't a terrorist! It wasn't until after ample Ana removed her hat, belt, shoes, blouse, skirt, bra and panties that the popular men's magazine model remembered to tell the officers doctors had put a steel pin in her hip following a ski accident.

Kids smuggled on airliner — in luggage

TOKYO, Japan — Police have arrested a man and woman and accused them of trying to smuggle their three children aboard a 747 jet — inside suitcases checked at the baggage counter.

Should I go meet the baby I abandoned in 1970?

Dear Serena: Twenty-six years ago, in 1970, I did a terrible thing. Alone and pregnant, I gave birth to a beautiful baby girl and put her on a stranger's doorstep. I was young and afraid at the time but for the past several years I have spent all my time and energy trying to find my daughter.

Recently I learned exactly where she lives. But I'm afraid if I go to meet her, she might reject me — and that would be too painful for me to take. Please advise me as to how I should proceed. — Worried in Pensacola

Dear Worried: Good news! Your daughter would love to meet you now — especially since she gave birth to her first child just three months ago.

Dear Serena: My husband recently left me for another woman. I still love him very much and believe we can put our relationship back together. Can you tell me if he will ever come back to me? — Heartbroken in Baltimore

Dear Heartbroken: Your husband isn't coming back but don't despair. I see great fortune and happiness for you with a new man. Expect swift and dramatic changes in your life — beginning now!

Dear Serena: I recently had a tarot card reading which said I will soon come into physical contact with a being of pure light from another plane of existence. The cards also said I will be taken aboard a spaceship and that the beings aboard will teach me things that no other person can comprehend. What do you think about all this? — Wondering in Yuma

Dear Wondering: I think you're awfully lucky and hope you enjoy the trip. By the way, my crystal ball tells me you'll be embarking before the month is out!

Dear Serena: For years my friends have told me you're the greatest psychic ever, but I don't believe you have any special abilities. Please don't be offended but would you prove you do have powers by answering these four questions: What is my first name? What's my yearly salary? What kind of car do I drive? How many children do I have? Answer these questions correctly and I will become a believer. Miss even one and my suspicions of you being a fraud will be confirmed. — Disbeliever in Utah

Dear Disbeliever: Mary. $19,744. Chevy Nova. Two. You should have asked me about those car keys you lost last week. You'll find them under your front porch!

DEATH THREATS: Rhea fears for her life every day.

By RANDY JEFFRIES / Weekly World News

LOS ANGELES — Divorcee Rhea Cherblade was overjoyed with the huge alimony settlement the court awarded her. But her joy turned to horror when her sicko ex-husband began making vicious threats — some of them etched into the paint of her $40,000 custom Dodge Stealth!

"I feel so powerless," said Mrs. Cherblade, 40.

"I know he's doing it, the police know he's doing it, but no one can prove it. It terrifies me that he's still walking around free."

Mrs. Cherblade's nightmare began shortly after a judge ordered her ex, cardiologist Dr. Jacob Cherblade, to pay her $300,000 a year in alimony.

"I was on top of the world," she says.

"I was out of a bad marriage and well off financially. I went right out and bought a $40,000 custom sports car to celebrate my freedom."

But that sense of freedom was short-lived.

Mrs. Cherblade says there's not an iota of doubt in her mind about whose voice it was — that of her former husband.

She immediately called the police and they questioned the heart doctor. But he denied making the call.

"But the next day he called me again," says Mrs. Cherblade. "He was furious that I had called the police and he said, 'Now I'm not just going to ruin that car — I'm going to kill you.'"

A week later Mrs. Cherblade was shocked to find her beautiful car savagely vandalized. Threats and insults were scratched into the paint. "Die bitch" and "You slut" were gouged into the front fender. And the word "Bitch" in large letters was etched into the driver's door.

"He called later and threatened to kill me," she says. "But there's no proof.

World-class cheapskate reveals . . .

'I DINE JUST ONCE A WEEK — IN AN ALL-YOU-CAN-EAT RESTAURANT!'

By RANDY JEFFRIES / Weekly World News

NEW ORLEANS — Thanks to the abundance of all-you-can-eat buffets, Americans can get by on a weekly food budget of $7.99 or less — by eating one meal every seven days!

The $7.99 price tag is average for a buffet meal in the U.S.

"It's cheap, it's easy and it's perfectly suited to the human digestive system," says author Rupert Callavan, who has lived on one meal a week for the last two years.

"The secret is going to the right buffet at the right time and eating the proper foods in the proper order. Remember, as a species, we evolved from a race of primates who had to go long periods of time between meals.

"Our ancestors would kill a mastodon and gorge on it. Then they'd sometimes have to fast for a week or more before they could track and kill another.

"Our systems function best on that feast-famine principle.

"Perhaps the greatest boon to natural eating is the buffet. It allows you to fill your stomach relatively cheaply with stick-to-the-ribs food that can be efficiently stored as fuel."

Here, from Callavan's book Cavemen Eating For Modern Lifestyles are some of his tips on how to live on one meal a week — at a cost of about $7.99 or less:

● Have your meal between 11 a.m. and noon. That's when the body's food-storing biorhythms are at their highest.

● Eat at buffets that serve lots of meat and chicken — even if it's cheap meat and chicken. Don't make the mistake of filling up on worthless calories like fruit and vegetables. We're meat-eaters — by nature. Animal protein stays in the system longer.

● Eat fast. If you linger you're full. It usually signals a full feeling about 20 minutes after you start eating. A fast eater can cram in lots of groceries in 20 minutes.

● Eat the fattest foods first. Ribs, fried chicken and Salisbury steak provide a protective pool of grease for the leaner cuts of meat to fall into. The body takes longer to digest greasy food.

● Don't rush out. Remember, they can't make you rush. Eat until you can't eat another bite, sit there an hour, then eat again.

AUTHOR Rupert Callavan.

Great tips on how to turn a buffet table into a great meal & your private supermarket!

Callavan says not to worry if it takes awhile before you can eat enough to stay full for a week. Keep working.

MEDICAL WARNING: Weekly World News warns readers not to embark on this or any other food regimen without consulting their physicians.

CHINESE SEX LIVES STINK!

JINGMEN, China — Chinese couples have crummy sex lives and unhappy marriages but shun divorce because people frown on it, a major new study reveals.

"Chinese marriages tend to be stable but the quality of marriages is not good," declared Liu Daling of Shanghai University.

The study involved interviews with 23,000 people and revealed that over half had unfulfilled sex lives and considered themselves to be unhappy.

"In spite of this, many people have the idea of making do with a bad marriage," said sociologist Liu, "because divorce is disapproved of in China."

World heading toward economic disaster . . .

SPACE ALIENS DEVOURING EARTH'S GOLD SUPPLY!

By RANDY JEFFRIES
Weekly World News

DENVER, Colo. — A respected scientist has discovered the shocking reason why the world's gold supply has been diminishing year by year: It's being devoured by space aliens!

Noted biologist Dr. Jane Wylander, who traces extraterrestrials' activities on Earth, believes our entire supply of gold could be gone in seven years — consumed by a race of mineral eating aliens.

"We've been aware of them for two decades," says Dr. Wylander, 43. "They're desperate and they're violent.

"Over the last eight years, 137 people have reported that the savage E.T.s actually ripped gold watches and wedding bands right off their wrists or fingers and ate them."

Dr. Wylander believes these particular aliens' internal organs are much different from ours.

Our bodies are designed to digest animal and vegetable matter. They, on the other hand, thrive on minerals.

And gold is the mineral most harmonious with their digestive tracts.

The respected researcher theorizes that the gold eaters must have depleted the gold on their own planet.

Now they've come to Earth to feast on ours. Dr. Wylander and her staff have been monitoring their comings and goings on Earth for more than 20 years. In that time, our gold supply has been steadily declining.

BIOLOGIST
Dr. Jane Wylander.

"It was gradual at first," she says. "Miners and prospectors began making fewer and fewer strikes.

"As the years progressed, gold has become even more rare. It's very hard to find now.

"In the late 1980s the aliens began getting more desperate. Now it's so risky that wearing any gold whatsoever on your body is virtually inviting alien assault."

Dr. Wylander predicts an attack on Fort Knox will occur in 1998.

And Swiss economist Dr. Hans Brecht says our nation — indeed our world — is headed for economic disaster.

"World economy is based on the gold standard," says Dr. Brecht. "That means every U.S. dollar, every Swiss franc, every Mexican peso is backed by gold. If that gold is no longer there, the entire system is doomed to collapse."

Dr. Wylander says she's notified NASA and the FBI but hasn't heard from them.

"Apparently, they're afraid of world panic," she says.

"They obviously prefer to try to sweep the matter under the rug."

THE CLOTHES YOU WEAR REVEAL YOUR PERSONALITY!

Men who usually dress in clean white shirts tend to have high moral standards.

That's just one remarkable example of how the clothes you wear say a lot about your personality, according to leading psychiatrist Dr. William Appleton. Here, from the expert, are some other fashion choices and what they reveal:

● Baggy and loose fitting clothes — These are the sign of a shy person who puts a premium on privacy.

● Revealing clothes — If you like to prance around in shorts or revel in skimpy beach wear, you are probably a calm, relaxed person.

● Floral print dresses — Women who wear these outfits are usually good-natured, lighthearted and have a lively sense of humor.

● No-frills shoes — People who favor sturdy all-purpose shoes instead of an assortment of formal and casual footwear are generally practical and resourceful.

● Long-sleeved shirts — Prefer these? You look at life in a more leisurely way and don't feel constricted by convention.

● Hats — Women who love to wear hats tend to be secure, poised and confident.

● Just one look — If you wear the same tie every day or the same color and style of clothes, this signifies that you are an industrious, creative person. You are too busy making important decisions to waste your precious time pondering what to wear.

Killer swarm claims hundreds as it moves from one Pacific island to another!

ATTACK OF THE GIANT VAMPIRE MOSQUITOES

COLOSSAL mosquito is eight inches long and weighs an incredible four ounces.

By ANWAR BASARAH / Weekly World News

APATAKI, Tuamotu Archipelago — Scientists and international relief agencies are speeding to the small northern islands of this South Pacific archipelago after residents sent word they are under attack — by swarms of giant vampire mosquitoes!

Emergency radio broadcasts from the islands of Makatea, Takaroa and Rangiroa indicate that at least 217 people have been killed by the 8-inch-long insects, which congregate in clouds of 30 insects or more and surprise defenseless humans in jungle areas.

New breed of insect drains every last drop of blood from its human victims

"The radio warnings say the mosquitoes divebomb their victims and empty them of blood in a matter of seconds," said Richard Tessier, a merchant in Apataki. "People are afraid to go outside.

"No one has any idea where these giant bugs came from, but they appear to be spreading from island to island. They're feeding on animals, birds and every human they come across. And — judging by the way their numbers are increasing — they're very rapid breeders."

The winged attackers were first spotted in late June, the radio dispatches say, after several weeks of heavy rains had pounded the islands. A swarm of about 20 of the giant insects attacked three children at a swimming hole, killing them before the eyes of their horrified playmates.

Over the next few weeks, 214 more people fell victim to the blood-sucking bugs.

"Apparently it's a horrible death," Tessier said.

"Victims are punctured by the mosquitoes' probosces — sharp, flesh-puncturing sucking organs — and just drained of their blood. The poor people turn a deathly pale color seconds after the mosquitoes attack and go into convulsions almost immediately. The mosquitoes cover their screaming prey like swarming blankets of wings and legs and in no time the victims' twitching stops and they are dead."

Experts say the bird-sized 4-ounce mosquitoes may be the result of mutations caused by recent French nuclear bomb tests in the Pacific. Others believe the giant bugs have developed because of weather and temperature changes related to the diminishing ozone layer.

"No matter what triggered the development of these giant mosquitoes, our problem now is to stop them," Tessier said.

"They have already spread among at least three islands and rumors are they've been sighted on several others. If we don't stamp them out quickly,

SAY 'NO!' BABY!

By ANN VICTORIA / Weekly World News

BILLINGS, Mont. — Thanks to an avalanche of mail from compassionate Weekly World News readers, the parents of 9-month-old Brandon Tweeg have changed their minds — they will NOT push the tot out of a plane at 13,000 feet in a bid to make him the youngest sky diver ever!

In our August 13 issue, the NEWS reported that Brian and Liona Tweeg were planning to equip their son with an automatic-opening parachute, take him up in a small private plane and let the boy "experience the mind-expanding thrill of free fall at an age when it is sure to leave a lasting impression."

The issue was scarcely on the stands when the NEWS editorial offices began getting besieged with mail — 44,297 letters to date — pleading with the Tweegs to change their minds. And the mail is still coming in by the carload. It's been a long time since an issue has touched our readers' hearts so deeply.

The Tweegs say these powerful pleas have convinced them to cancel the project. Brandon will not be making the jump.

"We were wrong to even consider it," said Liona in a telephone interview just days ago. "But it took this outpouring of emotion from your readers to open our eyes.

"We see now that we must allow our son a normal childhood."

Brian was even more candid.

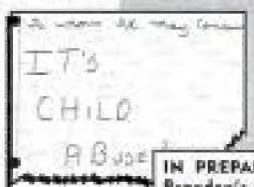
"It was sheer selfishness," he said. "I didn't realize, until I read those touching letters, that I wasn't doing what I wanted to do with my son. I was doing what I wanted was what Brandon wanted. But this heart-felt mail has shown me I was just indulging my own ego. Thanks for opening my eyes."

Here, excerpted with the Tweegs' permission, are some of your responses:

● "Please, for the love of God, don't do this terrible thing. Don't you see you're going to leave your son with emotional scars he will never get over?" reconsider your decision. He's way too young to make this jump." R.A., Lexington, Ky.

● "Sit down, take a few deep breaths and ask yourself, 'Is this right?' I believe your conscience will guide you in this matter." R.T., Logan, Ohio.

● "If your son survives the jump, he will live with the nightmare in his memory for the rest of his life. If he DOESN'T survive, it will be you who



IN PREPARATION for his record-breaking 13,000-foot jump, Brandon's parents dropped him from a 400-foot tower.
